Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 28 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain, sleet, snow spreading north today. Showers in far north.

Today:
Rain, sleet, snow across central, south, extending to all but far north during afternoon. Snow level confined to high ground in south, but quite low levels in north, with heavy falls over some higher ground. Sunshine, showers in far north.

Tonight:
Rain south of Central belt occasionally turning heavy. Wintry showers, clear spells in far north. Elsewhere area of generally light, patchy rain, snow, wintry to quite low levels in north.

Friday:
Area of rain, sleet and snow in central and southern areas, slowly and erratically clearing southwards as sunshine and wintry showers follow from the north.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Mainly dry, bright, but cold with widespread frost. Scattering of wintry showers in north, perhaps down east coast, also chance of period of rain, snow in far southwest from Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.